How Pahlisch Homes Turned IT Expenses into Education Funding

IMPACT SUMMARY

In 2025, Pahlisch Homes transformed a portion of its everyday technology expenses into $21,925.78 in community impact, without increasing spending or changing vendors.

By reviewing their use of Sophos, Microsoft, and Veeam, existing operational costs were redirected to support local education.

Pahlisch Homes chose to direct this impact to the Bend-La Pine Education Foundation, with a focus on Career and Technical Education (CTE) programs at high schools in Bend and La Pine, Oregon. These programs provide students with hands-on learning and clear career pathways, helping prepare the next generation with practical skills and real-world experience.

By aligning routine business expenses with education and skill development, Pahlisch Homes invested in the long-term strength of their community while operating efficiently and maintaining fiscal responsibility.

TESTIMONIALS

"Our partnership with PIE feels authentic at every level. They've built a model that makes it easy to support community-focused initiatives without losing sight of operational discipline or accountability. For us, that balance between purpose and practicality is critical, and PIE delivers it in a way that feels genuine and sustainable."

— Jason Myhre, Chief Communications Officer, Pahlisch Homes

We are deeply thankful to PIE and Pahlisch for their generous investment in the Bend-La Pine Education Foundation. Their support will make a significant impact by strengthening programs that prepare students for future success and provide educators with the resources they need to inspire learning. This partnership reflects a shared commitment to our students, our schools, and our community.
